

CHILD LABOUR = CHILD ABUSE

Anex was established to work against the in country trafficking and exploitation of especially the girl-child. Therefore, the organisation broadened their strategies to combat the phenomenon. To this end it was deemed important to build the capacity of the community and government departments to support the affected child. In addition, it became imperative to empower the child domestic worker to break free from exploitative labour and return to their families.

Anex's program of action incorporates:

- Engagement in advocacy lobbying to improve the situation for child domestic workers legislatively and in policy-making. They made submissions to the Portfolio Committee on Social Development to include the issue in the Children's Bill. In addition, engaging with the Department of Labour to inform the Child Labour Action Plan.
- Conducting training with service providers
- Conducting research to remain abreast of the pertinent issues in the child labour arena.
- Utilising the media to ensure consistent coverage of the issue.
- Developing networks and partnerships with other civil society organisations and government role-players to raise awareness of the incidence of child domestic work.
